In ancient India, our agriculture was based on a system of co-operation. Even to-day, hired labour is seldom used by villagers. Villagers work on each other's fields and carry on their work in a systematic way. Consumer's co-operation is now confined to cities in India. It is just making its way to villages. Our villages are not at all the self-sufficient units. They used to be in the past - multi-purpose co-operatives have been in some of the villages in India. They are working quite successfully.
